Appendix B Repayment Method & First Rights to Buy Back SOW

In order to repay the Lender the Lender may be required to create a wallet or other address for their SOW Coin to be sent to. The Borrower agrees to assist the Lender in the creation of their wallet or address as may be required. After receiving any SOW Coin as repayment for this Loan Note, the Lender agrees to act in good faith by notifying the Borrower and the Company of any intentions to sell the SOW Coin or trade the SOW Coin so that the Borrower and the Company may have a chance to either be the first buyer to purchase the SOW Coin back from the Lender or assist the Lender in trading their SOW Coin in an orderly fashion that does not disrupt or lower the market price and market capitalization of SOW Coin in the market which would be detrimental for everyone.

Appendix C Terms of use of the Deposit Bank Account & Risks

The Company will utilize any funds from the sale of SOW Coins in whatever means that management deems is necessary, legal and legitimate in order to help people according to the mission of the Company as expressed in public statements and white papers and in a way that builds the community and support of SOW coin users. While management intends to maintain full accounting of the Company's income and expenses, which may include audits, there is no guaranty that any of this information will be made public or otherwise made available to the Lender. The Lender understands and agrees that this loan is very risky and is based on the good intentions and integrity of the participants in the Company and organization and favorable market conditions in general for "Crypto Currencies" that may not exist in the future when this note is due. The Lender understands and agrees that any repayments of any amounts of principal and interest are dependent exclusively on the market for SOW Coin and that the SOW Coin is not a stock, share or security and as such there is no underlying assets or shares of profit or anything else that adds any value to the SOW Coin itself other than support from the market by users of the SOW Coin. The lender agrees that the funds being supplied are funds that the Lender can afford to lose. The Lender fully understands that this loan is speculative and is not secured by any tangible surety other than SOW Coin, the value of which is entirely dependent on the support of people for the concept and the works of the Company and the goals of the Company to sustain itself through development projects; and as such there may be no other recourse for the Lender to collect the repayment of equal value of their principal or interest if the works of the Company fail to gain sufficient market capitalization and liquidity for SOW Coin which is the method of repayment for this loan.
